FISHERIES REPORT 3rd September 2012

How has it been Fishing?

The cool and unsettled nature of the first half of the summer continued pretty much through July and August, guaranteeing some really excellent fishing during the period. Air temperatures rarely exceeded 22c. Water temperatures have stayed predominantly low, and fish have been feeding right through the day, with anglers using chiefly nymphs to catch on a regular basis. A brief spell of heat to 32c in the middle of August triggered off algal blooms at Park Lake and also Powdermills, but Weston and Vale End saw clear-water fishing throughout, and anglers able to stalk their quarry. Whilst nymphs have been of most use, a fair number of fish have been taken on dries, especially sedges and hoppers. River sections, buoyed by the summer rain, have been running at good levels, in good clarity, and offering some fine sport to nymph and dry fly. The river section at Vale End has been particularly productive, and stays open until the end of this month.

Prospects for September

Early September brings some much welcomed settled weather. A rise in water temperature will see the best fishing away from the middle part of the day during bright skies, but accompanying cloud will see fine sport continuing.

Dries should be catching really well, with the Daddy season getting into full swing, plenty of damsel nymphs still around, and also buzzers and sedges complementing the diet, so, plenty going on.
